

YOUTH AND SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS' PARTICIPATION IN INDONESIA

by Dwi Harsono, Marita Ahdiyana, Lena Satlita, Argo Pambudi, Tuan Nooriani Tuan Ismail

ABSTRACT

Development in developing countries is still facing many obstacles. To deal with that situation, the UN initiates the Sustainable Development Goals indicators to implement in the countries' program and policies throughout the world. The initiative includes the role of youth as part of the stakeholder and provides them with greater opportunity to involve for their on future. However the youth's participation are less compare to the adult group. This research aims to (1) explore the student's level of participation in the process of SDGs in Indonesia, and (2) assess the Youth strength and weakness throughout their Sustainable Development Goals participation in Indonesia.

The research design is descriptive approach with a quantitative research method. To deepen the analysis, it will conduct interview to obtain information from the respondents. This research will use an online data collection to fill the questionnaire. The respondents will come from university students throughout university in Indonesia. The analysis technique used by researchers was descriptive statistic to explore the information about the variable.

The output of this study is to provide (1) publication in indexed international journal: Publication article on Journal of Southeast Asian Studies, Q2, IF 0.27, (2) Policy Recommendation Book of Community Participation, and (3) Publication in indexed the International Conference of Hazard Mitigation in Geographic and Education Perspectives (ICHMGEP 2022).

Kata Kunci: youth, participation, sustainable development, Indonesia