ABSTRACT

This research is motivated by the waning of the practice of Pancasila values ??among the younger generation of Indonesia. Whereas Pancasila has an important position in the life of society, nation and state. This study aims to determine the construction of the practice of Pancasila values ??among the younger generation and to find out what factors influence the construction of the practice of Pancasila values. This study uses a quantitative approach, with data collection methods using the questionnaire method and data analysis methods using SmartPLS. The results showed that the character of the practice of Pancasila values ??of the younger generation was very good. Religion has a considerable influence in constructing the character of the practice of Pancasila in the younger generation. Socio-cultural factors also have a positive effect on the character of nationalism. It can be said that the stronger the religious appreciation of the youth in DIY, the better the character of nationalism. Likewise, the better the socio-cultural behavior of the youth in DIY, the better the character of nationalism will be. On the other hand, economic and educational factors have a slightly negative effect on the character of the practice of Pancasila values. The higher the economic level of the youth in DIY, the less good the character of the practice of Pancasila values. The higher the level of youth education in DIY, the less good the character of the practice of Pancasila values.
